LOOK THROUGH MINE EYES WITH THINE.

Look through mine eyes with thine. True wife,
Round my true heart thine arms intwine.
My other dearer life in life,
Look through my very soul with thine!
Untouched with any shade of years,
May those kind eyes forever dwell!
They have not shed a many tears,
Dear eyes, since first I knew them well.

Yet tears they shed. They had their part
Of sorrow, for when time was ripe
The still affection of the heart
Became an outward breathing type,
That into stillness passed again
And left a want unknown before,
Although the loss that brought us pain,
That loss but made us love the more,

With farther lookings on. The kiss,
The woven arms, seem but to be
Weak symbols of the settled bliss,
The comfort, I have found in thee.
But that God bless thee, dear, who wrought
Two spirits to one equal mind,
With blessings beyond hope or thought,
With blessings which no words can find.

—Tennyson.

AN AERIAL FLIGHT.

I stood on the latticed roof of the rickety grape arbor, partially supporting myself by the tips of my fingers as I clung to the second story window sill.

Marie leaned as far out as was consistent with safety and rested her hand caressingly on my shoulder. Although my love for the maiden was intense, I could not for a moment forget the uncertainty of my foothold, neither could I forget that the sleeping room window of my sweetheart's father was directly beneath me.

"Never!" he had said, when I offered myself to him as a prospective son-in-law. "Never! No daughter of mine shall marry a penniless inventor."

During the many stolen interviews which had followed the adverse decision of the obdurate parent we had discussed the situation from all points, and ever with the same results. At last we had decided to separate for a season that I might the more fully devote my time to the solution of the problem by evolving from my mental workshop some practical creation which would bring to me both fame and fortune.

Marie was a modern woman in every respect. She had been caught on the psychological wave that was sweeping around the world and was familiar with all the 'osophies and 'ologies that accompanied the movement. She was an adept in mind reading and fairly proficient in the later science of telepathy.

"Watch for messages, dear Jack," she whispered, as she gave my shoulder a gentle pat and drew herself within the window. "You will hear from me often. Perhaps I may need you. Who can tell?"

At this point the brittle frame beneath my feet cracked ominously, and without further farewells I clambered down and started out on my mission.

Ted Brown, my college chum and confidant, was fully as enthusiastic as myself over the many experiments and inventions I had essayed, and when he heard my story he entered heartily into my plans, which, if perfected, would revolutionize modern traffic and travel.

One month later found us in the heart of the Rocky mountains and far from the beaten trail of prospector, sportsman or adventurer.

Our pack animals were already beginning to show signs of collapse, so severe had been the fatigues of the mountain journey.

Realizing the imprudence of farther advance skyward, we were about to turn back and seek some sheltered valley in a milder atmosphere, when I felt a gentle pressure on my shoulder. Involuntarily I turned, expecting to see my comrade beside me, only to find him several feet away, pulling with all his might the cinch strap on one of the pack animals. I lifted my foot to the stirrup, and again I felt the pressure on my shoulder, this time more forcibly than before, and a voice—I could swear it was Marie's—sounded in my ear:

"Turn to the right."

In an instant her parting words flashed upon my mind, and almost unconsciously I turned in the direction indicated.

What could I do? Our plans were already made. Should I yield, how could I explain to Ted in a satisfactory manner this sudden change in our movements?

Suddenly, without waiting for the dreaded explanation, I shouted to him as I sprang to my saddle, leaving him to follow, as I was quite sure he would.

As I drew near the mountain a zigzag seam, which reached from the summit downward, developed into a well defined cleft, broadening at the base, leaving an opening a few feet wide, through which I recklessly plunged without a thought of what danger might await me.

Scarcely half a dozen steps brought me out into an open space.

In ages agone some terrible subterranean upheaval had partially cleft the peak, and through all the countless years that had followed the action of frost and water had gradually worn and crumbled the sides of the gorge until there was formed an open circular space several feet in diameter and nearly surrounded by a solid wall of rock.

It is needless to go into details concerning the progress of the work. There were the usual seasons of experiment and failure, of hope and despondency, but through it all the great creature grew, until it nearly filled the little circular space.

A long, slender, hollow body, fitted up with a motor and comfortable seats; a huge pair of outspread canvas wings and a fan shaped rudder, altogether unlike any other aerial sailer that had yet made its appearance. And during all the time occupied in the construction of this birdlike navigator I had been so often encouraged and advised when apparent failure confronted me by the same voice that had led me to the spot that it really seemed as if Marie was as fully identified with the success of my undertaking as myself.

"All aboard!" shouted Ted as we took our seats and opened the valves that controlled the mysterious power. Straight as an arrow and as swift we arose from the little inclosure. The sky was starlit and clear, and the whole panorama of the rough and ragged country was fast disappearing before we thoroughly realized that our venture was a success. We moved at a fearful pace, judging by our aerometer, which clicked with the regularity of a clock as it marked the miles and degrees.

At dawn our aerial navigator was safely anchored within the rock inclosure, and we were wrapped in our blankets under our tents. Ned was soon snoring, but, excited and unnerved as I was, I could not sleep and at last threw the blankets aside and entered the inclosure to feast my eyes on my treasure.

I closed my eyes and soon was lost to consciousness until the familiar pressure of finger tips on my shoulder awakened me to the well known voice sounding in my ear:

"Jack, Jack, come quick!"

There was an earnestness in the tones I had never yet heard, which brought to my recollection Marie's parting words:

"Perhaps I may need you. Who can tell?"

Evidently Marie was in trouble, and I must go to her, and we began making preparations for our departure.

Our most valuable belongings, with food and water sufficient for the journey, were packed within the ship's lockers, and our tents stored within the inclosure. As darkness approached we unhitched the anchor chain from the staple in the wall of rock and started.

At midnight we were hovering over Marie's home. We dropped downward until I could outline the house and grape arbor. With a few hurried words to Ned I sprang lightly to the roof.

The window was open, and the next instant my sweetheart was leaning outward, with her hand on my shoulder in the old familiar manner, pouring her woes into my ears.

"Just think of it, Jack. Papa is determined that I shall marry Cousin Tom. The cakes are baked and in the pantry. The guests are all invited for the wedding tomorrow and the license is on the library table. What can we do?"

Of course there was but one thing to do, and that we did without delay. Marie stole quietly down into the library and secured the license. How simple a matter to erase one name and substitute another. And while she was about it, with her usual forethought she confiscated the bride's cake. This, with her wardrobe and jewels, was passed through a window, and then I signaled to Ted.

The ship settled down like a huge bird on the grape arbor. Marie gave a little shriek as we stepped on board, causing Ted for an instant to lose control of the lever. There was a crash of splintering pine as the grape arbor gave way beneath our combined weight.

Straight upward like a rocket we arose for 1,000 feet or more. As we turned the searchlight on the wreck we saw a figure clad in a long, white nightrobe gazing at us, and a voice, trembling with rage, called:

"Marie, come down here!"

"Poor papa."—Chicago Tribune.

Couldn't Be Deceived.

Dennis McCarty, a true son of Erin, was suing his neighbor, William Smith, for damages occasioned by the defendant's carelessness in allowing his donkey to escape from his stable and trespass upon plaintiff's premises, thus doing much mischief in his garden.

McCarty stepped into the witness box to give evidence in support of his case, and when he had finished the lawyer who appeared for the defendant proceeded to cross examine him.

"Now do you mean to say that all this injury to the property of which you speak was caused solely by Smith's donkey?"

"Sartinly, sor."

"Oh, indeed; and where did you first see this animal which you declare has been the source of so much mischief?"

"I saw him tied up in defendant's sthable."

"You and where did you next see him?"

"On my primises, to be sure."

The lawyer now saw his chance and in his best manner pressed the question.

"How did you know it was the same donkey?"

"How did I know?" was the derisive exclamation. "If I saw yez tied up in a sthable don't yez suppose I'd know ye when yez got loose?"

The plaintiff was excused from further evidence.—Spare Moments.

Get Trusted For Their Fares.

It is perhaps not generally known, even in Brooklyn, that persons of respectable appearance may travel on the street cars of that city when they have no money. A woman who has left her purse at home or a man who has spent all his change speculating in stocks, if ordinarily well dressed, has only to tell the conductor the condition of affairs, on boarding a car, to get carried to any desired point.

The conductor gives the penniless passenger an envelope addressed to the office of the company, in which to forward later the lacking nickel. This is done as a matter of course, and only a passenger who looks disreputable meets with refusal.

The system has been in operation some time, which is apparent proof that the passengers who thus get trusted for their fares use the envelopes given them for the purpose for which they are intended.—New York Sun.

The Distinction Was There.

"You women," said he in the peculiarly exasperating way a man has of saying those two words, "You women buy bargain things because they are cheap."

"We do not," said she. "We buy cheap things because they are bargains." The distinction was almost too subtle for the blundering masculine intellect, but it was there.—Indianapolis Journal.

CHINESE SQUEEZES.

Official Promotions Go Hand In Hand With Enormous Bribes.

Prior to each promotion the official has to be received in audience by the emperor. But this is a very costly affair, for no one's presence in the capital city is recognized until he has bribed the gatekeeper to register his name as having passed into the city and duly report his advent. That Li Hung Chang had to pay an enormous sum in tips and bribes—over £1,000,000—on his last visit to Peking is a matter of common knowledge, but the narration of two instances that have come directly under my notice may perhaps serve to make the English reader realize even more vividly how inexorable and how shamelessly open is the systematic corruption.

The governor of Kiang-su province, who was an intimate friend of Prince Kung, thought to take advantage of his great influence by coming into the city without bribing the gatekeeper. When he called upon his royal friend, Prince Kung exclaimed: "When did you come? I cannot possibly recognize your presence, for I have not seen your name in the chung-wen-men report," and he had to return and pay double the usual bribe to the gatekeeper before Prince Kung would receive him. Even more remarkable is the case of Tso-Tchung-Tong, one of the greatest of our generals, who, having suppressed the Mohammedan rebellion in Turkestan, had acquired for the Celestial empire territory about half as large as China itself. The emperor, who held him in high esteem, wished to see him and sent a special summons calling him to an audience at Peking.

When on his coming to the city the chung-wen-men, or gatekeeper, demanded 80,000 tael, he refused to pay anything. But even he was not officially reported, and after he had remained several months in Pekin, waiting for an audience, the emperor issued another edict, asking why he had never come, Tso-Tchung-Tong responded by telling the whole story, adding that, having spent all his own and his family's money on the support of soldiers during the war, he had no means with which to pay such a bribe. He appealed to the emperor graciously to relieve him of the imposition. In reply the emperor said: "This [the feeing of the gatekeeper] is a general and ancient usage, and the viceroy and generalissimo must submit to it like another." And as Tso-Tchung-Tong really had not the money, his friends raised a subscription, the dowager empress herself contributing half the required sum.—Fortnightly Review.

Never Drink on the Water.

"It is a curious fact, easily verified, that domesticated aquatic fowls do not drink while they are swimming," remarked M. A. Fulton of Arkansas. "An old farmer friend of mine down in Arkansas called my attention to this a short time ago, and I have since been closely observing the habits of ducks, geese and swans in this regard to see if there was any variation from the rule laid down by my friend. I have thus far failed to find the least exception.

"Two weeks ago I watched a flock of tame geese nearly all day to see if one of them would not dip his beak down in the water while paddling along its surface and take a drink. One shrewd old gander twice startled me by swimming ashore and satisfying his thirst, after reaching terra firma, by guzzling copiously and with manifest relish from the water along the bank and then swimming out to deep water again. Even the goslings went through the same performance when they grew thirsty. I would say the geese did this because they had no better sense, but when I saw ducks and swans go through the same performance I cannot bring a sweeping accusation of idiocy against the already too much maligned goose without including in the indictment all other domesticated aquatic fowls. Probably the foolish and useless habit is due to the fact that when young these animals are taught to drink from troughs and pans, and they haven't intelligence enough to shake it off when they get grown. I cannot account for it in any other way."—St. Louis Republic.

Safety Elevators.

An improved system has been adopted in respect to the new elevators for the library of congress. They are built with a special view to safety, and in addition to a safety catch are provided with what is termed the air cushion—the latter not a real cushion, inasmuch as it is not soft, nor is it made and put in position, being formed only when the elevator is dropped to the bottom of the shaft, and thus all wear and tear on the cushion is avoided. The principle is very simple. At the bottom of the shaft is a well about 13 feet in depth, the sides of which are so arranged as to come at the top within the sixteenth of an inch of the side of the elevator, this space gradually growing larger until there is a distance of an inch and a half between the elevator and the shaft. When the elevator is dropped from the roof, it pushes before it a quantity of air, and, dropping into the well, the air is compressed and, escaping very slowly, allows the elevator to settle easily.

Queer and Shocking.

Recent advertisements in the daily papers are calculated to make mine museum freaks gasp with envy. The "bearded lady" would be an ordinary mortal beside the curiosity quoted here: "Lost, a dark green leather lady's pocketbook." Think of a dark green leather lady! In another advertisement we learn that "girls are wanted to sew buttons on the second story of the Smith & Jones building," and while we are wondering what the second story is going to do with the buttons after they are "sewed on" we see that Brown & Co. want "a saleslady in corsets and underflannels," and we are so shocked that we never read any more "wants."—Boston Gazette.

INDEX-TRIBUNE

SONOMA, AUGUST 21, 1897.

H. H. GRANICE - - - - - - - - - - - - EDITOR

THE Thirteenth Grand Council of the Young Mens' Institute has been in session in Santa Rosa the past week.

THE agitators for an improvement club in this city have mistaken the appellation. They mean a non-improvement club, judging from their opposition to a municipal water works system and other town improvements.

THE opponents of a municipal water works system in this town are making more noise than a hysterical hen over her first egg. The hen, however, may be excusable in a measure for her senseless clatter as she has accomplished something. With the kickers against public improvements it is different. With them it is all cackle and no egg. This is (eggs)actly the case every time.

NOTWITHSTANDING the efforts of chronic kickers in this town the City Trustees are pursuing the even tenor of their way and public improvements under their guiding hand are being pushed forward without the aid of an "improvement club," which would be a useless adjunct to the town while the present Board of Trustees are in office.

THE Sebastopol Times on Wednesday last entered upon its ninth volume. The Times for the past two years has been ably conducted by J. P. McDonell, than whom no one is more deserving of success in the journalistic field. Bright, honest, upright and a young man of remarkable push and energy, he is destined at no distant day to become the foremost newspaper and business man of Sonoma county. Jack, here is our ☛. Shake!

THIS town has a fast-driving ordinance which ought to be strictly enforced by the City Marshal. Of late Broadway and Napa streets have been converted into veritable race tracks by reckless drivers, who apparently have no regard for the lives and limbs of pedestrians. Several women and children have narrowly escaped being run down the past week and if a halt is not called on the dangerous practice it is only a question of time when somebody will be maimed or killed outright.

THE ALAMEDA HI is the title of a weekly amateur journal published in the interest of the students of the Alameda High School, the initial number of which is before us. It is edited by Grace M. Langley, while the business management of the paper is conducted by our young friend Leland S. Ramsdell. It is a spicy sheet, no doubt, in the eyes of the ordinary high school student, but to a plain, every-day editor it does not smack of the right flavor. A little more pepper-sauce, please.

AN editor up north is mourning the loss of two subscribers. Number one wrote and asked how to rear twins safely, while the other one wanted to know how to rid the orchard of grasshoppers. The answers went forward by mail, but by accident he transported them into the wrong envelopes, so that the man with twins received this answer to his question: "Cover them carefully with straw and set fire to it, and the little pests, after jumping around the flames for a few minutes, will be speedily settled." While the other man plagued with grasshoppers was told to "give caster oil and rub their gums with a bone."—Ex.

Fatal Accident at Petaluma.

Julius Fochetti of this place, while in Petaluma on Sunday last, witnessed a fatal accident in which a man named Cash was instantly killed and his two daughters seriously injured. It appears Cash was driving to the railroad depot with his two daughters when he encountered a runaway team coming in the opposite direction. Cash's horse wheeled around and started to run and got beyond control. The horse ran about a quarter of a mile and dashed into a rustic stone fence at the residence of John McNear, throwing all the occupants out. Cash was thrown against the stone fence and his head split wide open. He died instantly.

City Trustees.

The City Trustees met in regular session last Wednesday evening. Present—J. H. Seipp, President, and Trustees Hartin, Bulotti and Poppe. Trustee Modini was absent on account of sickness.

The minutes of the previous meeting being read and approved the bill of County Surveyor Recksecker, for surveying First-street East, in the sum of $10 was allowed and ordered paid.

In the matter of the proposition of the Sonoma Valley Bank, made to the Board at a previous meeting, wherein the bank officials asked that the city allow the cost of a wooden curbing in front of the bank premises to go on the erection of a stone curbing which the bank intended to lay down, Clerk Poppe reported that he had examined the ordinances of the city and found that they contained nothing in regard to curbing the sidewalks of the city.

The Street Committee reported that notices inviting sealed proposals to grade and otherwise improve Second-street East, between Spain and Napa streets, had been posted.

The matter of the filthy condition of the open ditch on First-street West coming up for discussion City Marshal Robin was instructed to notify all property-owners running the refuse of wash tubs and sinks into the ditch that they must abate the nuisance.

On motion of Trustee Hartin, seconded by Trustee Poppe, the Marshal was instructed to render a report as to his collections of street poll taxes.

Geo. Engler appeared before the Trustees and complained that the water in the ditch running through his property in the southern part of town was dammed up. Action in the matter was deferred until the next meeting.

The annual report of City Recorder Cheney for the fiscal year 1896-7, was presented, read and ordered filed.

The Board then adjourned.

Is Life Worth Living?

If there is an individual on earth who is excusable for thus interrogating himself, it is the unhappy mortal who suffers from malaria in some one of its diabolical forms. This is no difficult conundrum, however. Life is worth living by any man or woman who enjoys good health, and is not harrassed by a reproachful conscience. The malarial scaurge, heavily laid on, is a terrible one for the poor sufferer to endure. A series of freezings, scorchings and sweats—the last leaving one as limp and as strengthless as a dish rag, are hard indeed, recurring as they do with fiendish regularity. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the world-wide known preventative and curative of this class of maladies, either in the form of ague or fever, bilious remittent, dumb ague and agua cake. Used with persistence they will, rely upon it, eradicate disease from the system. They also conquer rheumatism, kidney and bladder complaints, nervousness, dyspepsia, liver complaint and constipation, and renew failing strength.

Scrofula Swelling

On the Neck and Great Weakness Caused by Impure Blood—Was Constantly Growing Worse.

"When my son was 5 years old he was in very poor health and we could get nothing to relieve him. At the age of 7 years he began to complain of soreness on both sides of his neck and soon lumps began to gather on one side and grew to half the size of an egg. We then became more uneasy and began to doctor him for scrofula. He gradually grew worse, however, until at the age of twelve years we had lost all hope of his recovery. He became so weak he could sit up but a few minutes at a time. My wife saw Hood's Sarsaparilla recommended as a great blood purifier and we sent and got a bottle. We began giving our boy the medicine according to directions and it was not long before we saw he was improving. He continued taking it until he was in very good health. He is now 13 years old and is well. We recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla for all troubles caused by impure blood." S. M. SILVER, Grouse, Oregon.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Get only Hood's.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

ON HIS WAY TO THE KLONDYKE

Young Pauli Heard From—Arrives at Juneau and Starts for Dawson City.

Ferdinand Pauli, son of the late Dr. Pauli, for many years a resident of Sonoma, who recently left for the gold fields of the Klondyke on the steamer Geo. W. Elder, has arrived safe and sound at Juneau. Several letters were received this week from young Pauli by Sonoma friends. He writes that he had reached Juneau without adventure and with five companions would leave in a few days for Dawson City via Dyea and the Chilkoot Pass. The party is well supplied with money, provisions and arctic clothing. The young adventurers expect to reach the Klondyke gold fields before September 1st.

An Intelligent Mule.

The Nicolini brothers, residing on their ranch between Agua Caliente and the Hooker Creek falls, are the owners of a big black mule that is possessed of more than ordinary intelligence for one of the long-eared tribe. The stall of the animal is provided with a water box as well as a feed box. To the former is attached a faucet and when the mule desires to slake his thirst he turns the water on and off with his nose. This animal must not be confounded with the dog-in-the manger advocates against a municipal ownership of water works in this town just because he has water and plenty of it. He is only a plain, ordinary every-day "mewel" and a well-behaved animal.

Have Engaged Counsel.

Regan and Herges, who were arrested several weeks ago by Deputy Sheriff Ohm, for cracking the safe of the S. F. & N. P. Railway Company at this place and for committing the numerous robberies in this valley, are still in jail at Santa Rosa awaiting trial. Their cases have not yet been set by Judge Burnett. The prisoners have engaged as counsel Wm. F. Cowan to defend them. It is said that they have a sum of money cached in the vicinity of the Hooker Creek, the cash proceeds of their numerous robberies in this valley.

A Returned Klondyker.

Wm. M. Gotwaldt, who recently resigned his position on the Santa Rosa Republican to go to the Klondyke gold fields, was in town yesterday. He started on his journey and got as far as San Francisco all right, where he struck a cool sea breeze and turned back. He is now engaged in his old-time occupation of soliciting ads. and subscribers for the Republican.

Justice Cheney's Court.

The suit of Bush & Mallett vs. John A. and Mary E. Nordin will be called in Justice Cheney's court shortly.

The civil suit of Otto Rufus vs. A. T. and L. L. Lewis, which was set for last Wednesday, has been continued to Tuesday, August 24th, owing to the failure of securing certain important evidence.

Steiger vs. Marti.

On Monday afternoon last Judge Dougherty filed an opinion in the case of Edward Steiger vs. Elizabeth Jenny Marti as executrix of the estate of the late Melchoir Marti, granting plaintiff a decree to quiet title to the Steiger ranch at Schellville. Thus ends a law suit of many years standing.

HO! FOR THE TRINITY COUNTY GOLD FIELDS.

A Number of Sonoma Valley People Leave for Coffee Creek.

The recent discoveries of rich placer mines in Trinity county has caused the gold fever to break out in this valley and as a result quite a number of our people have left, and others are preparing to leave, for the mines.

On Wednesday last Gus Cornelius and Walter Murphy left in a two-horse wagon for Coffee Creek, where they will prospect and endeavor to locate a mine. To-day a party composed of J. P. Key, who recently purchased the Capt. Oliver ranch, Frank Weaver and Al. Weaver, blacksmiths at El Verano, will also leave for the gold fields of Trinity county. They are supplied with a fine outfit consisting of a four-horse covered wagon, pack animals, saddles, miners tools, provisions, etc. Upon arriving at Coffee Creek they will go into camp and will thoroughly prospect the arroyos and canyons tributary to that stream, all of which are said to contain placer gold, and if a paying claim can be located they are going to freeze on to it.

SONOMA VS. KLONDYKE.

Gold Discovered in Sinking a Well in the Heart of Town.

On Monday last quite an excitement was created in this town by the discovery of gold on the private residence grounds of G. H. Hotz, on Broadway. It appears that Sol. Carriger, while engaged in sinking a well, had his attention attracted to a few glittering particles in a quantity of decomposed rock, which had been hoisted out of the well at a depth of about thirty-five feet. Upon being tested the bright specks were found to be gold all right, but as the find was not followed up it is not known whether the rock containing the gold was from a well-defined ledge or not. The chances, however, are that the specimens are from float rock, and so far little importance has been attached to the discovery.

Behind the Bat.

An exciting game of base ball was played on the diamond on the "Maple Lodge" farm last Sunday afternoon between the Buena Vista team and the Schellvilles. The game was called at 1 o'clock and throughout the nine innings it was nip and tuck between the two teams. The first inning resulted in favor of the Buena Vistas and at the close of the game the Schellvilles were defeated to the tune of 16 to 19. the Buena Vistas not claiming their ninth inning.

The pitchers for the winning team were Geo. McGill and Will Broderick, while Tom Fields served in the capacity of catcher. On the Schellville side Harry Perry and Andrew Conlin sent in swift and heavy curves for Joe Kiser to pick off the bat. The game was umpired by Chris Wise and Will Glynn.

Extension of First-Street East.

On Wednesday the work of removing S. Schocken's buildings, which occupy a site on First-street East from Spain street to the railway depot, was commenced by G. A. Goess. The building occupied by F. Ehleben as a saloon will be moved from its present site to the corner opposite and will face Schocken's store. The granary and other buildings will also face on First-street East. All the old sheds and outbuildings will be torn down and used for kindling wood and new ones erected in their stead. When this street will have been graded, sidewalked and thrown open, which will be sometime within the next two months, it will prove a great convenience to the general public.

Preliminary Survey.

Milo T. Sipe of San Francisco has been engaged the past week in making a preliminary survey for the electric light plant which will shortly be put in at the California Home at Eldridge. Mr. Sipe, who is a guest at the Mervyn Hotel, Glen Ellen, will probably complete his labors this week.

Estate of Henry Lentz.

J. S. Enos, J. E. Robin and F. W. Lay, appraisers of the estate of Henry Lentz, deceased, fix the value of the property in the estate at $1,382.50. A petition was filed in the estate asking for an order to assign the whole of the property for the use and support of the family.

CASTORIA.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is on every wrapper.

Local Brevities.

Deputy Sheriff Ohm visited Santa Rosa last Monday on business connected with the Sheriff's office.

Ed. Johannsen has secured the contract for running the county sprinkling cart in this valley. The sprinkling will be done at night.

Last Wednesday and Thursday were scorchers, the thermometer registering on the afternoons of those days between 95 and 100 degrees in the shade.

Large quanities of peaches and other kinds of fruit are being hauled daily to Batto & Son's fruit dryer at Vineyard station.

A party of deer hunters have been in camp this week near the headwaters of the Hooker creek. The party is composed of Jas. Pieratt, Chas. Weise, Al. Williams, Jerry Lafferty and Claude Lafferty.

Next Sunday the Buena Vista base ball team will drive to Petaluma and go the club of that place a round. The boys are confident of success, but say that at all events their experience can be no worse than being defeated.

Wm. B. Reed of Agua Caliente has arrived safe and sound at his old home in Iowa, which he has not seen for nearly half a century. After spending the winter there "Bill" expects to start for the Klondyke in the spring.

Charles Kraft of the Bay City Wheelmen, who lived in this valley two years ago and was known as the "Glen Ellen Flyer," has made a record for himself as a wheelman and is, without a doubt, America's fastest bicycle road rider. Last Sunday in a twenty-mile road race on the San Leandro road Kraft played smash with all known records and lowered the time of E A. Bozio, which is 50:16 1-5, to 48 minutes and 56 seconds.

GLEN ELLEN ITEMS.

Cloudy and foggy have been the mornings the past week.

Phillip Bran is at work for A. C. Schlessinger in Graham Canyon.

Editor Granice of Sonoma was in town on business last Monday.

Mr. Aaron Crocker, a wholesale merchant of San Francisco, and wife are at the Mervyn.

Word has been received here from Col. Harrison and party of two good sized deer being killed.

A valuable mare belonging to drayman Thierkoff broke her leg Monday morning and had to be shot.

Chas. J. Poppe has been refitting and painting his store the past week, J. W. Gibson doing the work.

Leslie Harper spent Saturday and Sunday with his sister, Mrs. E. J. Phillips, at her home below Sonoma.

A force of electricians are at work putting in wires etc., at the California Home for Feeble-Minded Children.

E. R. Allen, agent for the Southern Pacific Company at this place, has been transferred to Crow's Landing. He leaves for his new home in a few days.

During the past week the accomodations at the Mervyn Hotel have been taxed to their utmost capacity. The new croquet grounds are constantly used by the guests, and this, together with fishing, hunting and other pastimes to be found in the vicinity, affords pleasant recreation. Among the most recent arrivals at the hotel are Mrs. W. Morrisey, San Francisco; Miss L. O'Meara, San Francisco; Mr. Crocker and wife, San Luis Obispo; Mrs. M. J. Caseres, Berkeley; Miss Margaretta Kelly, San Francisco; Judge Hayden and family, Tiburon; Mrs. Knight and son, San Francisco; M. Sutherland and family, Oakland; Chas. Precht and wife, San Francisco; A. J. Tillotson, San Francisco; R. H. Smith, San Francisco; Milo T. Sipe, San Francisco; Emmett M. Bagley, San Francisco; Dr. C. Voigt, San Francisco.

This town was treated to quite a sensation on Saturday night last. During the temporary absence of tonsorial artist Thierkoff a stray cow entered his barber shop and took possession. The gyrations of the bovine attracted the attention of a passer-by, who gave the alarm by a series of shouts. This brought out the entire populace, many thinking the shop was on fire. When the cause of the commotion was discovered an effort was made to dislodge the animal. This was no easy task, as the room was too narrow for the cow to turn around and she stubbornly refused to back out of the door she had entered. Finally a number of our citizens, without previous experience as cow punchers, entered the shop and seizing the offender bodily carried her out, but not before our village barber shop had been converted into a veritable cow pen. It is not known what prompted the animal to enter the premises unless it was to imitate "the bull in a China shop."

MONASTERIES OF METEORA.

An Extraordinary Scene on the Macedonian Frontier.

Between the curve of the Macedonian frontier of the mountains of Khassia and the open town of Kalabaka, which terminates the long western plain of Thessaly, lie the monasteries of Meteora. A casual glance gives the idea of the whole space being occupied by lines of bare hills, but on a nearer inspection a curious amphitheater is found, carved out among the mountains, and this is occupied by a most extraordinary collection of rocks, on which are perched, like storks' nests or the turban on a Turkish tombstone, the aerial monasteries of Meteora. In one place a huge monolith is found literally crowned with buildings, as in the case of the monastery of All Saints, popularly known as Haglos Barlaam; in another a group of jagged rocks will have one point capped by a monastery, as is seen in St. Nicholas. The most striking feature about these monasteries is the method by which they are reached, either by loose ladders hanging outside the perpendicular rocks or by being wound up by means of a windlass in a net at the end of a rope.

From its beautiful position, its size and the fair preservation of its buildings the monastery of Haglos Barlaam is a very good specimen of these fifteenth century monasteries, but what makes this one of especial interest is that the rope is said to be the longest used for the purpose—340 feet. The ladders to this monastery are not so difficult to climb as some, but inasmuch as they pull out every time you grip them and oscillate frightfully it is pleasanter to risk the net.

The monastery of Haglos Nikolaos appeared to be in a totally dilapidated condition and entirely deserted when we visited Meteora, while the ladders, which rise from a neighboring peak and hang from the bare rock, are impracticable. All these monasteries are under the archimandrite, a man of commanding presence and saintly countenance. The village of Kastraki is jammed in between the outer rocks of this curious amphitheater, and in the slit of this rocky wall at the back of the village stands a most peculiar hourglass looking monolith. The rocks on either side are perforated with strange holes, which in the fourteenth century were inhabited by the monks of St. Anthony. —London Illustrated News.

GRANT AS A PEACEMAKER.

Settled With Infinite Tact Feuds Which Arose Among His Officers.

After the capture of Vicksburg Logan chose a prominent and beautiful residence for his headquarters, and General McPherson chose the same, and a quarrel threatened to involve divisions and corps and gave the superior officers great concern, according to the Chicago Inter Ocean. Both McPherson and Logan carried the case to General Grant. He heard the schemes of each, and his staff officers looked with dismay at his quiet, bashful way of listening.

After hearing both sides General Grant turned to Logan with a smile and said he was sorry that the general had placed his heart on any headquarters in Vicksburg, because he had just written an order sending the whole division on a special expedition to look after the retreating rebels. Logan glowered until Grant, turning to McPherson, said: "I am sorry to disarrange your plans, general, but I have just written an order sending your division on an important expedition. I appreciate the feelings of the men who would like to march through Vicksburg, but it will be impossible. Duty comes first." General Logan's face cleared and McPherson smiled. Each went to his command and there was no further trouble. They possibly suspected that Grant had invented the expeditions to get rid of the quarrel, but they recognized the fine strategy of his maneuver, the fairness of his decision.

Vassar "Female" College.

The Vassar girls will take exception to Dr. Parkhurst's expression, "female college." One of their glees treats of that subject. They had a "female" college once, but if there is a female college still it goes by another name. The change is celebrated in verse:

An institution once there was
Of learning and of knowledge
Which had upon its high brick front
"A "Vassar Female College."
The maidens fair could not enjoy
Their bread and milk and porridge,
For graven on the forks and spoons
Was "Vassar Female College."
Tra la, la, la! Tra la, la, la!
'Twas "Vassar Female College."

A strong east wind at last came by,
A wind that blew from Norwich.
It tore the "Female" from the sign
That was upon the college
And as the faculty progressed
In wisdom and in knowledge
They took the "Female" off the spoons
As well as off the college.
Tra, la, la, la! Tra la, la, la!
It now is "Vassar College."

The Sacredness of Prayer Rugs.

Verses from the Koran and other passages considered sacred are generally stamped on the fabrics used as prayer rugs by the Mohammedans, and it is criminal in oriental law to export such pieces. This is doubtless because use by the occidentals means the treading of the sacred words under infidel feet, and when you think it over it is not to be wondered at. A few years ago an American succeeded in getting two such pieces as near home as Paris, but the inducements offered to him to return them to the oriental dealer were potent enough to effect their purpose.

Lismore castle, the Irish seat of the Duke of Devonshire, is beautifully situated on the Blackwater. The town is of great antiquity and was once famous for its university and its monasteries.

India's pearl fisheries have been famous from the remotest time. In the Persian gulf the industry has existed from the days of the Macedonians.

The Energy of a Cyclone.

The primary cause of the low barometric pressure which marks the storm center and establishes the cyclone is expansion of the air through excess of temperature. The heated air, rising into cold upper regions, has a portion of its vapor condensed into clouds, and how a new dynamic factor is added, for each particle of vapor, in condensing, gives up its modicum of latent heat. Each pound of vapor thus liberates, according to Professor Tyndall's estimate, enough heat to melt five pounds of cast iron, so the amount given out where large masses of cloud are forming must enormously add to the convection currents of the air, and hence to the storm developing power of the forming cyclone. It is doubted whether a storm could attain, much less continue, the terrific force of that most dreaded of winds of temperate zones, the tornado, without the aid of those great masses of condensing vapor which always accompany it in the form of stormclouds.—H. S. Williams, M. D., in Harper's Magazine.

Belief Comes With Knowledge.

"Travelers' tales," although they have always been regarded with suspicion, were received by our ancestors in a singularly confiding spirit, and Marco Polo, and "that archliar" even, Sir John Mandeville himself, were treated with more or less respect. But as if to make up for their readiness to believe in "Gorgons and Hydras and Chimeras dire," when at a distance, other generations were singularly distrustful of most things near at hand. They displayed to a singular extent the wonderful skepticism that in all things directly touching the person generally accompanies ignorance. The state of mind was very much that of the honest farmer in the city who is in constant dread of being "bunceed."

Ignorance doubts itself, and consequently everybody and everythin else. It is only complete knowledge that is more nearly credulous, and advance toward it has been shown as much by what men are willing to believe and the readiness with which they believe it as by anything else. When the marvels of the Roentgen rays were announced, the attention of the world was brought up with a round turn by a discovery almost dramatic in its suddenness and surprise. Such sharp demands are becoming more and more frequent, but if there is anything more wonderful than the amazing nature of such inventions it is the way in which they are received.—Scribner's.

LUNG TROUBLE AND CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

AN EMINENT NEW YORK CHEMIST AND SCIENTIST MAKES A FREE OFFER TO OUR READERS.

The distinguished New York chemist, T. A. Slocum, demonstrating his discovery of a reliable and absolute cure for Consumption (Pulmonary Tuberculosis) and all bronchial, throat, lung and chest diseases, stubborn coughs, catarrhal affections, general decline and weakness, loss of flesh, and all conditions of wasting away, will send THREE FREE BOTTLES (all different) of his New Discoveries to any afflicted reader of the INDEX-TRIBUNE writing for them.

His "New Scientific Treatment" has cured thousands permanently by its timely use, and he considers it a simple professional duty to suffering humanity to donate a trial of his infallible cure.

Science daily develops new wonders, and this great chemist, patiently experimenting for years, has produced results as beneficial to humanity as can be claimed by any modern genius. His assertions that lung troubles and consumption are curable in any climate is proven by "heartfelt letters of gratitude," filed in his American and European laboratories in thousands from those cured in all parts of the world.

Medical experts concede that bronchial, chest and lung troubles lead to consumption, which, uninterrupted, means speedy and certain death.
